At this event, we hope to initiate conversations about some of the most impactful ideas and developments that could change the way we live. Our speakers include: Schuyler Bailar: the first openly transgender NCAA Division 1 athlete and LGBTQ activist, Aaron Maybin: former NFL player turned artist, activist, and teacher in Baltimore who is vocal about challenges the community faces, Sapna Kudchadkar: founder of PICU Up! working to end the culture of immobility in the PICU at Johns Hopkins, Jordan Greene: a professor in Biomedical Engineering at Johns Hopkins named one of the "Brilliant Ten" by Popular Science, Rene Vidal: director of the mathematical institute for data science at JHU and working on an international collaboration supported by the Department of Defense, George Mwinnyaa: a graduate student at Bloomberg changing the conversation in public health from his experiences in Ghana, Mina Cheon: an acclaimed Korean American artist at the intersection of politics and pop culture who has exhibited her work internationally, Katerina Jeng and Krystie Mak: co-founders of Slant'd, a nationally recognized media company that celebrates Asian American identity and has received coverage on CBS News, Colorlines, the first ever "100 most Influential Asians" list.

Date: Saturday, March 10th
Time: 1-4pm
Location: Mudd Auditorium

www.TEDxJHU.com