3rd Annual Maryland STEM Festival

WHEN: From October 31 through November 12
WHERE: Multiple sites Maryland
MORE INFO: Visit the website for more information.

STEM is a curriculum based on the idea of educating students in four specific disciplines — science, technology, engineering, and mathematics — in an interdisciplinary and applied approach. This year the STEM Festival brings a spotlight to the agriculture and food production. The event is a showcase for the State’s organizations and businesses to display their STEM successes and to encourage students of all ages, regardless of background and experience, to take a greater interest in STEM with the hope they will pursue a STEM based job or career.

Abell Award in Urban Policy

The Abell Award in Urban Policy is given annually to the student who authors the most compelling paper on a policy problem facing the City of Baltimore and feasible solutions. The Selection Committee decides on the allocation of the $5,000 award. The award is sponsored by the Baltimore-based Abell Foundation and the Johns Hopkins Institute for Health and Social Policy. The contest is intended to encourage fresh thinking about the challenges facing Baltimore City.

Please note that the Abell Award requires papers that address a timely issue, provide careful analysis, propose a feasible solution, and are written in a straightforward academic style. It is unlikely that a term paper will meet these requirements without substantial additional research and revision to the narrative style.

For more information click here.
Counseling Center Wellness Programs

The Counseling Center offers a variety of programs and workshops focused on developing skills or exploring topics that help students to Be Well. Do Well. And Live Well. All workshops are offered free of charge to Homewood and Peabody undergraduate and graduate students.

Research opportunity: Cochrane systematic review of interventions to reduce alcohol misuse in low- and middle-income countries

We are working on a systematic review and meta-analysis of psychosocial and pharmacological interventions aimed at reducing alcohol misuse in low- and middle-income countries. We are looking for a student(s) interested in this area to assist in screening, data extraction and other aspects of the systematic review/meta-analysis.

We are not able to provide compensation, but it is possible for the student to serve as a co-author on the draft submitted for peer review and/or fulfill the applied experience requirement.

Email Claire Greene (mgree116@jhu.edu), for more information.

Research Opportunity on Alcohol Misuse

This research is focused on a systematic review and meta-analysis of randomized controlled trials of psychosocial and pharmacological interventions aimed at reducing alcohol misuse in low- and middle-income countries, which has been registered with the Cochrane Drug and Alcohol Group. Students will assist in screening, data extraction and other aspects of the systematic review/meta-analysis.

For more information and any questions, please contact mgree116@jhu.edu.

CEHN General Internship

The Children's Environmental Health Network (CEHN) is a national multi-disciplinary organization whose mission is to protect the developing child from environmental health hazards and promote a healthier environment. CEHN student projects could include: assisting staff on education and outreach to targeted communities; fundraising research; and assisting with research and planning for new projects. Anyone may apply, but this position is designed for juniors, seniors or graduate students majoring in public health, environmental studies, or health sciences.

The application is due on November 1st. More information and how to apply here.

Carol Stroebel Policy and Health Education Internship

Carol Stroebel, former Director of Training and Policy at CEHN, was a long time champion for children's environmental health who dedicated her career to promoting public health and public interest policies. This internship will focus on public health and children's environmental health policy. Juniors, seniors or graduate students majoring in public health, environmental studies, or health sciences are welcome to apply. The position requires very strong written communication skills and proven leadership experience.
Eco-Healthy Child Care Internship

CEHN’s national Eco-Healthy Child Care® (EHCC) program strives to make child care facilities as environmentally healthy as possible by educating and empowering child care professionals to reduce toxicants within their child care facilities using free or low-cost measures. Those passionate about protecting children from exposures to common environmental health hazards, and those interested in early education and care settings, training and educating programs, will find this internship rewarding. Juniors, seniors or graduate students majoring in public health, environmental studies, or health sciences are welcome to apply. The position requires strong research, organization, and communication skills, attention to detail, and social media/social marketing experience.

The application is due on November 1st. More information and how to apply here.
