STUDENTS MAKING A DIFFERENCE:
Portrait of low-resource areas and ways to ameliorate them

Tuesday, October 17, 2017
5:00—6:00 PM
Room: W2008 (615 N. Wolfe Street)

GPSA for Health offers healthcare service learning programs in Guatemala, Belize and West Virginia to students who have a strong interest in pursuing a career in healthcare.

During this talk you will learn about the health challenges faced in the developing areas where GPSA works, and how the service learning programs train students to undertake medical interventions related to the health issues that can be found in these communities.

You will also learn about the opportunity to join GPSA’s Medical Fellows, global health, gap-year program, for 2018-2019. Medical Fellows play two main roles in the programs: 1) they work at a health center alongside doctors, nurses and community health workers; and 2) they lead the academic service learning programs for high school students.

Service learning programs are a way in which students can make a difference in the lives of communities in need.

Presented by: Gabriela Maldonado, GPSA Assistant Regional Manger

Born and raised on the outskirts of Guatemala City, Gabriela studied a MA in Cultural Anthropology and was a liaison between the Guatemalan immigrant community and Knoxville’s health department. She believes in solidarity and collaboration, and thus is happy to support GPSA service learning programs.

This has been an important year for public health advocacy. As advocates, we have worked together tirelessly to defeat the multiple attempts to weaken the healthcare system including the Graham-Cassidy-Heller-Johnson proposal this week. Though these bills have been defeated, there is still much work to be done to strengthen chronic disease prevention and health promotion funding and programs.

Join us October 21-23 in Washington D.C. for the 19th Annual Advocacy Summit to enhance your advocacy skills! Skill building workshops and advocacy training will prepare Summit attendees to support adequate funding levels and programs made possible by the Prevention and Public Health Fund.

Register for the Advocacy Summit and learn from our distinguished panel of speakers.

Tools for Building and empowering Youth Activists to Address Public Health Disparities

Chad Monk, MPH will discuss how youth engagement programs can empower and build youth advocates to create impactful and sustainable changes in their communities to address health disparities. The session will also explore the use of Youth Participatory Action Research (YPAR) as a framework for youth engagement programs.

Incorporating Advocacy in Higher Education: Faculty and Student Perspectives

During this session, Gayle Walker, PhD, CHES will provide participants with a general overview of how advocacy can be incorporated into the classroom and in health education settings. Participants will also be able to develop plans for implementing advocacy into education through service-learning and other health-focused opportunities for undergraduates.

In addition to attending, Summit registrants will also have the opportunity to earn CHECH credits in many of this year’s sessions.

REGISTER TODAY

View the complete Summit agenda
The first "Critical Thought Collective" of the Center for Africana Studies (CAS), originally planned for October 5th, will be postponed to October 19th, 2017. We are excited to be discussing Professor Christopher Lebron's new book, The Making of Black Lives Matter: A Brief History of an Idea. We encourage participants to read the book in full. The CAS has copies of the book that students and faculty may borrow.

We look forward to seeing you there!

Next Steps in Health Reform Conference

Students are invited to register for a three-day national conference: Next Steps in Health Reform 2017 to be held at American University’s Tenley Circle Campus Oct. 26-28, 2017. The $25 student registration fee includes breakfasts, lunches, an evening networking reception and coffee breaks. Student registration also includes a 1-year membership in the American Society of Law, Medicine, and Ethics, a preeminent inter-professional society for health lawyers, bioethicists, health care professionals, and health care administrators: http://www.aslme.org/. There will be keynote speakers focused in different topics of public health.
If you are interested you can register on the website, https://www.wcl.american.edu/news-events/special-events-cle/aslme/registration/.

3rd Annual Maryland STEM Festival

WHEN: From October 31 through November 12
WHERE: Multiple sites Maryland
MORE INFO: Visit the website for more information.

STEM is a curriculum based on the idea of educating students in four specific disciplines — science, technology, engineering, and mathematics — in an interdisciplinary and applied approach. This year the STEM Festival brings a spotlight to the agriculture and food production. The event is a showcase for the State’s organizations and businesses to display their STEM successes and to encourage students of all ages, regardless of background and experience, to take a greater interest in STEM with the hope they will pursue a STEM based job or career.

The Raising of America Film Viewing and Community Conversation

WHEN: Tuesday, October 17 from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.
WHERE: Under Armour House at Fayette Street Operated by Living Classrooms, 1100 E. Fayette Street, Baltimore, MD 21202
MORE INFO: Free event; food and childcare will be provided. Registration is required.

Baltimore Healthy Start, Inc. is partnering with Equity Matters to host a viewing and Community Conversation about the film, The Raising of America. This film explores how a strong start for all of our children can lead to a healthier, safer, better educated, more prosperous and equitable America. Special guest panelists include staff from B'More for Healthy Babies, Maryland Family Network, and Maryland Excels.

2018 Traffic Safety Scholars Program

Interested in traffic safety? The Lifesacers National Conference on Highway Safety Priorities will offer opportunities to learn about highway safety issues from leading experts and to network with the largest gathering of highway safety professionals. The Abell Award in Urban Policy is given annually to the student who authors the most compelling paper on a policy problem facing the City of Baltimore and feasible solutions. The Selection Committee decides on the allocation of the $5,000 award. The award is sponsored by the Baltimore-based Abell Foundation and the Johns Hopkins Institute for Health and Social Policy. The contest is intended to encourage fresh thinking about the challenges facing Baltimore City.

Please note that the Abell Award requires papers that address a timely issue, provide careful analysis, propose a feasible solution, and are written in a straightforward academic style. It is unlikely that a term paper will meet these requirements without substantial additional research and revision to the narrative style.

Unpaid Internships and Service

Research Opportunity on Alcohol Misuse

This research is focused on a systematic review and meta-analysis of randomized controlled trials of psychosocial and pharmacological interventions aimed at reducing alcohol misuse in low- and middle-income countries, which has been registered with the Cochrane Drug and Alcohol Group. Students will assist in screening, data extraction and other aspects of the systematic review/meta-analysis.

For more information and any questions, please contact mgree116@jhu.edu.

CEHN General Internship

The Children's Environmental Health Network (CEHN) is a national multi-disciplinary organization whose mission is to protect the developing child from environmental health hazards and promote a healthier environment. CEHN student projects could include: assisting staff on education and outreach to targeted communities; fundraising research; and assisting with research and planning for new projects. Anyone may apply, but this position is designed for juniors, seniors or graduate students majoring in public health, environmental studies, or health sciences.

The application is due on November 1st. More information and how to apply here.

Carol Stroebel Policy and Health Education Internship

Carol Stroebel, former Director of Training and Policy at CEHN, was a long time champion for children's environmental health who dedicated her career to promoting public health and public interest policies. This internship will focus on public health and children's environmental health policy. Juniors, seniors or graduate students majoring in public health, environmental studies, or health sciences are welcome to apply. The position requires very strong written communication skills and proven leadership experience.

The application is due on November 1st. More information and how to apply here.

Eco-Healthy Child Care Internship

CEHN’s national Eco-Healthy Child Care® (EHCC) program strives to make child care facilities as environmentally healthy as possible by educating and empowering child care professionals to reduce toxicants within their child care facilities using free or low-cost measures. Those passionate about protecting children from exposures to common environmental health hazards, and those interested in early education and care settings, training and educating programs, will find this internship rewarding. Juniors, seniors or graduate students majoring in public health, environmental studies, or health sciences are welcome to apply. The position requires strong research, organization, and communication skills, attention to detail, and social media/social marketing experience.

The application is due on November 1st. More information and how to apply here.
