3rd Annual Maryland STEM Festival

WHEN: From October 31 through November 12
WHERE: Multiple sites Maryland
MORE INFO: Visit the website for more information.

STEM is a curriculum based on the idea of educating students in four specific disciplines — science, technology, engineering, and mathematics — in an interdisciplinary and applied approach. This year the STEM Festival brings a spotlight to the agriculture and food production. The event is a showcase for the State’s organizations and businesses to display their STEM successes and to encourage students of all ages, regardless of background and experience, to take a greater interest in STEM with the hope they will pursue a STEM based job or career.

Next Steps in Health Reform Conference

JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY
The Abell Award in Urban Policy is given annually to the student who authors the most compelling paper on a policy problem facing the City of Baltimore and feasible solutions. The Selection Committee decides on the allocation of the $5,000 award. The award is sponsored by the Baltimore-based Abell Foundation and the Johns Hopkins Institute for Health and Social Policy. The contest is intended to encourage fresh thinking about the challenges facing Baltimore City.

Please note that the Abell Award requires papers that address a timely issue, provide careful analysis, propose a feasible solution, and are written in a straight forward academic style. It is unlikely that a term paper will meet these requirements without substantial additional research and revision to the narrative style.

CEHN General Internship

The Children's Environmental Health Network (CEHN) is a national multi-disciplinary organization whose mission is to protect the developing child from environmental health hazards and promote a healthier environment. CEHN student projects could include: assisting staff on education and outreach to targeted communities; fundraising research; and assisting with research and planning for new projects. Anyone may apply, but this position is designed for juniors, seniors or graduate students majoring in public health, environmental studies, or health sciences.

The application is due on November 1st. More information and how to apply here.

Carol Stroebel Policy and Health Education Internship

Carol Stroebel, former Director of Training and Policy at CEHN, was a long time champion for children's environmental health who dedicated her career to promoting public health and public interest policies. This internship will focus on public health and children's environmental health policy. Juniors, seniors or graduate students majoring in public health, environmental studies, or health sciences are welcome to apply. The position requires very strong written communication skills and proven leadership experience.

The application is due on November 1st. More information and how to apply here.

Eco-Healthy Child Care Internship

CEHN’s national Eco-Healthy Child Care® (EHCC) program strives to make child care facilities as environmentally healthy as possible by educating and empowering child care professionals to reduce toxicants within their child care facilities using free or low-cost measures. Those passionate about protecting children from exposures to common environmental health hazards, and those interested in early education and care settings, training and educating programs, will find this internship rewarding. Juniors, seniors or graduate students majoring in public health, environmental studies, or health sciences are welcome to apply. The position requires strong research, organization, and communication skills, attention to detail, and social media/social marketing experience.
The application is due on November 1st. More information and how to apply here.
